1	Social life, compared to what? Might have been better, might not.	12/1/2020 12:48 AM
2	I didn't realize I was there to make personal connections. I got a great education, had a good time, and did my bit to save the world.	11/30/2020 10:18 PM
3	I give to more underfunded causes.	11/30/2020 6:24 PM
4	I am sure that the dartmouth experience has improved since going co-ed.	11/30/2020 4:49 PM
5	Dartmouth was not a good fit for me. As an educational institution, it changed my life, but socially and, in all other ways, I didn't fit in. I now realize that much of it was my fault. I was too young and either unwilling or unable to make Dartmouth work for me. I deeply regret that.	11/30/2020 3:48 PM
6	Wish I had done a study abroad term.	11/30/2020 3:39 PM
7	The shortfall in my Dartmouth experience is 90% my fault.	11/30/2020 2:22 PM
8	Even though I wouldn't count "a significant number of classmates among my best friends". Many are good (and loyal) friends. Their support of my fund raising efforts has been awe inspiring.	11/30/2020 1:27 PM
9	Only wish I availed myself a bit more of the classroom and other educational opportunities offered by the greatest liberal arts college in the world.	11/30/2020 1:22 PM
10	Dartmouth in 1971 was actually quite anti-intellectual. Most of the changes since then--particularly coeducation--have improved the College enormously--both socially and academically.	11/30/2020 1:15 PM
11	It set me on my path, personally and professionally, ethically and spiritually.	11/30/2020 12:30 PM
12	When I answered "No" on "would I chose Dartmouth if I had to do it all over again, it was not because of an inherently negative Dartmouth experience, but because a unique family situation and aspects of my personality would likely have been a healthier choice.	11/30/2020 12:06 PM
13	Almost everyone's experience is greatly colored by the groups they associated with. I rowed on the crew and still see many of them - even out here on the West Coast. When I think of Dartmouth I think about the crew, my dorm, our house in Vermont, and a few classes where I had good friends.	11/30/2020 11:52 AM
14	I wish I had participated more in the Dartmouth Outing Club. But I still had a great overall experience.	11/30/2020 11:23 AM
15	For a naive kid from the west, the culture shock was unbelievable! Prior to my freshman trip, I had not known anyone who had attended a prep school nor anyone of the jewish faith. My experience with the later was very beneficial while the prep school exposure left me very unimpressed. I loved my experiences with the Outing Club and the ski team but the highlight of Dartmouth for me was Prof. Rassius and my foreign study in Bourges, France.	11/30/2020 11:08 AM
16	After almost 50 years, still some the closest, caring, intelligent, fun-loving people I've ever met	11/30/2020 10:56 AM
17	I overwhelmed myself basically taking 3 majors - math, comp sci and even though not listed as a major, premed. WAY TOO MUCH. Thoroughly enjoyed Senior year when I took interesting electives and was on Dean's Team all three terms. Until then, it was a slog.	11/30/2020 10:22 AM
18	Most of my problems at Dartmouth were of my own making!	11/30/2020 10:08 AM
19	1967-1971 were the best years to attend college, ever	11/30/2020 10:02 AM
20	Definitely weird to have to hitchhike for blind dates or drive 200 miles to Skidmore. In retrospect, there is so much more I could have taken advantage of ...even so, was richly rewarded for having spent 5 years in Hanover . Among other things, I was exposed to brilliance , and learned, the hard way, that to compete you have to fight, every day, for your place in this world.	11/30/2020 9:34 AM
21	Never said good bye to Dartmouth....only "so long for now", heeding JS Dickey's advice: "in the Dartmouth fellowship, there is no parting". There are definitely opportunities, like foreign study, working closely with a professor, certain DOC outlets, that I regret not taking advantage of.	11/30/2020 9:13 AM
22	It was worth every dollar it cost and provided the perspective and opportunities that I value in a	11/30/2020 9:09 AM liberal arts education.

23	I spent junior year and fall of senior year at Vassar--a much healthier environment in terms of gender relations.	11/29/2020 8:02 PM
24	Neither of the friends from my Dartmouth years with whom I have stayed in touch were classmates; that is, both were enrolled in other classes.	11/27/2020 11:38 AM
25	Regarding the question of whether I took advantage of all the educational experiences Dartmouth had to offer, I think I missed many opportunities. Of course much of this is my own fault: however, I never had an advisor and I feel an advisor could have helped. I was premed and so took large science courses and had little close faculty contact. As the first person in my family to ever go to medical school I felt that in addition to all the premed courses I would improve my prospects by majoring in Biology. This would have been fine if Biology had been my inspiration but I basically majored to look good to medical schools which was not necessary. I missed out on 8 courses I could have taken to broaden my experience in philosophy, art and literature. I hope you have some form of faculty advisor program for students now.	11/22/2020 9:32 PM
26	What was so great about the Dartmouth experience is that it provided the flexibility and freedom to learn and develop in so many ways and in so many areas (e.g. academics, athletics).	11/22/2020 7:33 PM
27	Undergraduate experience was quite troubling and embittering, overcome by a wonderful graduate student experience and a strong sense of gratitude for the college.	11/22/2020 6:53 PM
28	I have flippant said that I passed away a Dartmouth liberL education on six, drugs and rock & roll. I made up for it in earning an M.Ed. & M.Djv. in my twenties.	11/22/2020 8:06 AM
29	I felt I was there to learn and study	11/22/2020 7:20 AM
30	I wish a truly wise person had instructed me on how best to take advantage of my time there. But that would have required advice about life in general which not too many people are qualified to give.	11/21/2020 4:31 PM
31	I quickly discovered that I was only comfortable as a maverick within the Dartmouth community of the day. But my overriding reason for ruing my choice was the absence of female students.	11/21/2020 2:35 PM
32	I feel very blessed to be a Dartmouth graduate and a member of the Class of 1971.	11/21/2020 1:11 PM
33	Dartmouth badly needed to be co-ed by the time we were there. Fortunately it became so almost immediately thereafter.	11/21/2020 10:58 AM
34	A wonderful place to be in the late '60s, great friendships, but perhaps too much focus on partying, ala Bones Gate. If I had known I would be doing the Tuck 3/2 program, I would likely have branched out more academically.	11/21/2020 10:22 AM
35	Initially a bit of a shock, social, cultural, geographical, but came to love the place.	11/21/2020 9:00 AM
36	Juggling academia, college sports and my personal life was a challenge in managing time effectively. I learned to filter out the fluff- stuff that was not truly important and to focus on what mattered. This form of discipline stayed with me throughout my career. The result was some extra time for my family and myself. I had dinner every evening with my family knowing that work was only one segment of my life. That simple act improved my family life, gave my children a better perspective on life and made me and my wife happier.	11/21/2020 8:35 AM
37	Unexpectedly, the value of my personal growth and experiences at Dartmouth were at least on a par with the academic component, and probably even more significant for life enhancement.	11/20/2020 10:23 PM
38	I didn't get engaged in any way as a freshman. Sophomore year, I got a little better tracked academically and did a lot of hanging out with counterculture friends. Spent my junior year at Bennington, then hit a sustainable comfort zone when I rented an old farmhouse in Strafford with three classmates. Started feeling like an adult there, a member of a community, and had a comfortable, arm's length relationship with the College. It was definitely the most formative of my years as a college student.	11/20/2020 10:02 PM
39	Twisted social band anti intellectual environment	11/20/2020 8:39 PM
40	have stopped donating because of Hanlon policies	11/20/2020 5:42 PM

41	I loved it, but I always look back at my immaturity, knowing that I could have done more with the education.	11/20/2020 5:07 PM
42	Not merely reflecting an emotion of a 71 year old, I have over the years consistently felt grateful for the opportunity to attend Dartmouth.	11/20/2020 4:47 PM
43	Adding women to student body is a huge gain in many ways. At the same time talking to students suggests that they don't have as much fun as we did.	11/20/2020 4:12 PM
44	My Dartmouth experience played an important role in my life's work/career in a mostly negative way. My Dartmouth experience radicalized me, such that I knew what I did NOT want to do after graduation. I didn't want a career where I would be "ripping off" anyone, or "selling out" to the Military Industrial Complex in any way. That left relatively few careers to choose from (or so it seemed), and I can't say that I've made the best use of my intelligence or education in my adult life.	11/20/2020 3:50 PM
45	I did not fully appreciate my experience at Dartmouth for several years following graduation. In those years, I became aware of the opportunities offered by other college and universities. Many had at least as much to offer as did Dartmouth.	11/20/2020 3:40 PM
46	Taking my junior year as an exchange student at a women's college GREATLY improved my social experiences...	11/20/2020 3:01 PM
47	Looking back, Dartmouth offered numerous appealing learning and outdoor experiences that I did not take advantage of either out of bad judgement or ignorance of their existence.	11/20/2020 1:58 PM
48	I worked hard for co-education, designed the full-year calendar, and benefit by having a son and daughter-in-law who are both alums.	11/20/2020 1:53 PM
49	I was so lucky to have attended!!	11/20/2020 1:50 PM
50	Hard to say whether I would pick Dartmouth again. Not a "yes" or "no" question...	11/20/2020 1:27 PM
51	Giving a full page in the last dam to a person who hates America and thinks that the defeated of naziism communism Islamist terrorism and has brought more people out of poverty than any other. And he thinks USA is a force for evil. When there are so many thousands of good decent people to cover has really made me rethink where to allocate my contributions. Not against liberals but certainly against leftists as much as extreme rightists. Really gives the impression Dartmouth is only for extreme leftists. Very sad	11/20/2020 1:23 PM
52	I doubt if I, or any of my close friends at Dartmouth would be admitted today. The concept of the "rugged individualist" has been lost. All the College wants today are the 1% of the 1% top students. There is no longer a clear distinction between Dartmouth students and those who are Harvard or Yale bound.	11/20/2020 1:15 PM
53	Time heals all wounds, and I left Dartmouth with many regrets. I regretted not taking advantage of the the incredible educational opportunities and the special programs. I regretted choosing a school without women. But now it all seems so sweet.	11/20/2020 12:58 PM
54	My son also graduated.	11/20/2020 12:54 PM
55	The all male environment had certain advantages. But overall, I think our 4 year experience would have been much richer if the school had been co-ed.	11/20/2020 12:43 PM
56	The Dartmouth of my time was a different place than it is today. Its student body then included a significant number of smart jocks with an anti-intellectual streak and they set the tone of the place. So I transferred to Yale after my freshman year. Yet I retain fond memories of Dartmouth's exquisite campus and its superb, student-oriented faculty.	11/20/2020 12:37 PM
57	I came to despise the fact that Dartmouth was not co-educational. I also grew tired of the beer culture, and moved off campus my senior year.	11/20/2020 12:29 PM
58	One of the most important transformational experiences of my life	11/20/2020 12:19 PM
59	In my day the Dartmouth culture was built, in large, around the fraternity experience. Not being a member I found social opportunities pretty limited. The lack of a significant female population didn't serve me well either, so I graduated with the same inadequacies which I had in tow when I started. I never truly fit the Dartmouth image, but legacy had drawn me there. I believe that I would have done far better with a gap year to augment my maturity and broaden my worldview.	11/20/2020 12:19 PM

	Today, if I were looking for a college to meet my needs, it would probably be both coed and urban.
60	Regrets that I never did a foreign study term, and the many great courses that I missed out on. Social life (dates) was in hindsight pretty much a disaster. My academic and extracurricular life was great.	11/20/2020 12:05 PM
61	I wasted so much time between 1967 and 1971 it was kind of ridiculous.	11/20/2020 11:57 AM
62	Excellent fit for me! Small, liberal arts, beautiful, geographically diverse, and very friendly.	11/20/2020 11:47 AM
63	I loved going to Dartmouth and look back on it fondly.	11/20/2020 11:31 AM
64	It has been life-enriching!	11/20/2020 11:26 AM
65	Sadly Dartmouth has been absorbed into the Woke globalist agenda.	11/20/2020 11:23 AM
66	It was a small college and we loved it! Daughter in 2001 found the same experience at Williams.	11/20/2020 11:22 AM
67	My Dartmouth experience continued well past graduation because I was employed by the College three separate times. In each case the bond was strengthened mostly because I worked hard to make it so. All a matter of perspective, I know, but I still would not trade it for anything.	11/20/2020 11:18 AM
68	Some things are better and some worse since co-education brought about year around operation and all the off campus programs.	11/20/2020 11:16 AM
69	What a privilege. Should have realized it then	11/20/2020 11:14 AM
70	Changed my life, mostly for the better.	11/20/2020 11:11 AM
71	Great great teaches like Bien and Starzinger and Wilmerding. Great education that I draw on every day of my life. One is the best experiences of my life.	11/20/2020 11:08 AM

1	I did not identify with some of the comments made in the film. I found professors and students very welcoming of visiting women students. I wonder if some of the accounts are revisionist history.	11/30/2020 10:01 AM
2	I was fortunate to be at Dartmouth as senior, so I felt a bit more mature and confident than many other students. I had many freshman and sophomore male friends, perhaps because most had just come from a coed environment and were comfortable with female students and friends. Spending a year at Dartmouth was a unique and special experience: attending an all-male, academically challenging college contributed to my confidence and sense of self. Plus, it was lots of fun!	11/29/2020 6:13 PM
3	The Hop was everything to me and the people I met there were fantastic. I know very little of Dartmouth other than that and unless you count the Hop as social life I had no social life — which is fine because I was fully occupied at the Hop.	11/29/2020 5:54 PM
4	My relationship with the students was very different from that with the professors. The students were fine; all of the professors were awful except two.	11/29/2020 5:32 PM
5	I appreciate that you finally considered me a member of the class. MIT doesn't. I wanted to stay, but the faculty would not allow it.	11/29/2020 5:22 PM
6	Having attended a number of schools, colleges, and grad schools, and being a now retired educator, I have to ration my donations.	11/22/2020 1:59 PM
7	I met a Dartmouth man my junior year, I married him and have been married 50 years	11/20/2020 4:05 PM
8	My only episode of sexual harassment came from a professor and not a fellow student. I have not supported the college's fundraising efforts to the extent that I otherwise might because I had not been solicited during the 40 years that the exchange students were essentially forgotten by Dartmouth.	11/20/2020 2:04 PM
9	I spent 2 years at Dartmouth. My first year most current juniors and seniors were not in favor of coeducation and many alumnus were opposed as well. The women were very strong academically and serious. And it was not always easy socially. By my second year many more people were in favor of coeducation and I thought the college made an effort to recruit women who had some connection to Dartmouth before they came — father, brother, boy friend. Appreciated strong ties to faculty that I was able to develop	11/20/2020 12:44 PM
10	I really never left the Hop. Made some good friends in the theater department but know little about social life or aspects of Dartmouth outside that.	11/20/2020 11:37 AM

1	What, me worry? But after retiring 5 years ago, dreamed about starting job again for first 6 months.	12/1/2020 12:52 AM
2	I'm working on improving the outlook for my happiness and health, and optimistic.	11/30/2020 2:24 PM
3	My religious faith, while not constant, is critical to my being. Because of compromised health, my mortality is an ever-present factor in my life.	11/30/2020 1:32 PM
4	I fear for my child's future life but not my future life and death.	11/30/2020 1:25 PM
5	Our health and fitness consciousness has increased dramatically over the years. 70 is the new 50..he said hopefully.	11/30/2020 1:16 PM
6	I'm fortunate still to be myself -- creakier, perhaps, but not crankier.	11/30/2020 12:32 PM
7	My "Deeply" (1) is an unconventional spirituality - in that it is a true marriage between a connection to a "deeper meaning and purpose" that IS based within the Judeo-Christian tradition, and yet is AS connected to an empirical, very sane connection to all forms of good science...	11/30/2020 12:10 PM
8	I feel that the covid pandemic and the current social and political situation in the US have a negative impact on our physical and emotional well being. At our age, the impact is less from covid than it is for younger people.	11/30/2020 12:05 PM
9	I hike, I ski, I row, I lift weights, I do full contact gardening (building stone walls, landscaping, etc.), I climb ladders to paint my 3 story house, I am starting another not for profit and I serve on the board of another.	11/30/2020 11:56 AM
10	Asymptomatic but with a cancer with no known proven treatment. I'll hang around long enough for them to find that treatment ... and then live even longer.	11/30/2020 11:25 AM
11	I have made a conscious choice to work for myself and not get involved with any corporate work.	11/30/2020 11:10 AM
12	I am hoping to break through the 76 year barrier age. NO male in my family has succeeded all the way back to Karl der Grosse. Am living a charmed life with my companion dogs. Just wish they would live longer.	11/30/2020 10:24 AM
13	I'm thankful to be alive and to be able to make a difference.	11/30/2020 10:17 AM
14	It's the state of the country that's the problem	11/30/2020 10:03 AM
15	At age 71 it's hard to adjust to the reality that I'm looking through the wrong end of the telescope. To wake up and find myself on the quad as a freshman, knowing what I know now, would be an incredible state of grace.	11/30/2020 9:38 AM
16	Dealing with renal insufficiency is tiring and being hold up in the house so much because of COVID with my 95 year old father is sometimes difficult, but my wife and I are buoyed by regular Zoom chats with our 4 grandchildren.	11/30/2020 9:14 AM
17	Regrets about not being able to serve in the military--gave up my NROTC scholarship at end of sophomore year due to the conflict in SE Asia. No regrets about the decision, per se, but would have liked serving in the military under different circumstances.	11/30/2020 9:09 AM
18	Will this survey ask how many classmates believe in a Nature's God or life after physical death?	11/30/2020 9:07 AM
19	Spiritual does not mean religious....	11/30/2020 9:06 AM
20	We live in very challenging times, and my education has placed me in a relatively safe realm of white middle-class privilege, but feel the need to build awareness of those in greater need and the way to help meet those needs. Two recent books I've read: Reverence and Gratitude .	11/29/2020 8:07 PM
21	I live as well as I possibly can each day and I am still a kind, considerate, aware and productive citizen of this world.	11/29/2020 5:38 PM
22	Contracted cancer and beat it - almost recovered, and completely optimistic it won't recur. Recently married and moved, I'm happier than ever before.	11/27/2020 11:42 AM

23	Very spiritual, but not an organized religion	11/26/2020 9:38 AM
24	Good so far, but could change tomorrow.	11/22/2020 6:55 PM
25	Having just retired, planned before Covid, nothing is normal and there is as yet only headaches, no "settling in" or "exploring new opportunities."	11/22/2020 2:01 PM
26	Beginning in my thirties I struggled with serious depression & anxiety. Numerous therapists and psychiatrists misdiagnosed and mistreated me. I was miserable for much of the next 30 years. At the age of 60 a Dartmouth psychiatrist and therapist changed my diagnosis & treatment to bipolar. I now lead a happy and healthy life.	11/22/2020 8:16 AM
27	Over the past 15 years we built our own home (by hand) living at 7800' in a remote area so physical activity has always been prominent but goal oriented	11/22/2020 7:25 AM
28	My nightmare is a gruesome variation. During finals I can't remember the 3rd course I had signed up for that term.	11/21/2020 6:01 PM
29	"The more we understand things, the more we understand God." So I strive to remain as active as possible.	11/21/2020 4:35 PM
30	I am inclined to agree with Eastern mystics that happiness can be found in this life and that the way to do it is to wipe away the tears of those who are suffering - but you have to learn how.	11/21/2020 2:39 PM
31	I walk regularly but should exercise more.	11/21/2020 1:16 PM
32	Having chosen to live in a small resort town in Montana, the lifestyle favors good health and activity. We are fortunate to have our children and grands within easy driving distance, all of which adds to quality of life in retirement.	11/21/2020 10:27 AM
33	Healthier than I deserve to be, and grateful for that. Love retirement, thankful for family and friends, still eager to travel, still feel vital. Not to get too sappy, but I was a working-class immigrant kid who found an American dream. And Dartmouth played a considerable role in shaping that dream.	11/21/2020 9:10 AM
34	I do my best to live a useful life, even in retirement. I am in motion during the entire day. I am civic minded (Planning Board and a conservation board), I work around the house and hike with my dog every day. Throw in some stretching, meditation and time in the woods? Life is good. Growing older seems under rated as the weight of having to prove ones self melts away. Yes, these ARE the golden years.	11/21/2020 8:45 AM
35	Almost entirely positive and upbeat in the personal realm; heavily pessimistic about the ability or likelihood of humans to coexist sustainably with other life and with earth systems.	11/20/2020 10:36 PM
36	I've been fortunate with the aging process. Some of the parts are wearing down, but I still work full-time as a self-employed carpenter, which along with the genetics has kept me fit and ready to get going every day. As decrepitude creeps in on me - or appears on the horizon - I feel I'm emotionally prepared to accept what comes.	11/20/2020 10:08 PM
37	Years of being an uncoordinated jock has left me with a bunch of parts that don't work so well. Plus genetic arthritis..... Dartmouth left me with a very inquisitive mind, and able to easily see others points of view; I'm emotionally very stable.	11/20/2020 5:45 PM
38	While mortality is around the corner for all of us, I continue to work physically, exercise and enjoy life. No, my health isn't perfect but I am generally happy with my well-being.	11/20/2020 5:11 PM
39	"Our normal waking consciousness, rational consciousness as we call it, is but one special type of consciousness, whilst all about it, parted from it by the filmiest of screens, there lie potential forms of consciousness entirely different. We may go through life without suspecting their existence; but apply the requisite stimulus, and at a touch they are there in all their completeness... No account of the universe in its totality can be final which leaves these other forms of consciousness quite disregarded." -- William James (1902)	11/20/2020 4:51 PM
40	As FACES and Rod Stewart said "I wish I knew then what I know now"!	11/20/2020 4:17 PM
41	Born again Christian hence my happiness. My mom is 99, I exercise daily & am physically great.	11/20/2020 4:06 PM
42	Multiple illnesses and disabilities, and I live alone with no children. So despite my spirituality, the future appears bleak.	11/20/2020 3:52 PM

43	While I am quite healthy, I am struck by the number of friends my age or younger who have died from incurable disease, e.g. pancreatic cancer, Alzheimers.	11/20/2020 3:44 PM
44	It continues to be a good life...	11/20/2020 3:02 PM
45	I've had a great life. Wonderful wife and children. I have overcome the adversities and succeeded in business. As I look around at my friends, some have not been as successful or led middling lives, and this upsets me. I don't like to see Dartmouth pals end poorly, and I'm seeing it.	11/20/2020 2:53 PM
46	My primary sources of anxiety are about the state of our Democracy and the extent to which Trump and Trumpism have threatened everything I was brought up to believe in about democratic institutions, presidential conduct, responsibilities of being a citizen, and justice, not to mention the values I was taught and deeply believe in concerning the need for fairness, integrity, compassion, and philanthropy to help those in need.	11/20/2020 2:07 PM
47	The reason I answered the first question the way I did is because of the Covid pandemic, our incompetent President Trump (he's a disgrace), and all the rioting that's going on.	11/20/2020 1:54 PM
48	Did "spiritual" mean religious? If so, 7. If it meant aware of our smallness in the great scheme of things, 1.	11/20/2020 1:30 PM
49	My missionary experiences in Japan during 2 1/2 year break from Dartmouth did more my outlook and happiness or insights than Dartmouth ever did. Still I gained many skills at Dartmouth I am grateful for. Just not everything	11/20/2020 1:27 PM
50	The answers to these questions are skewed by the impact of Covid-19	11/20/2020 1:25 PM
51	I've been disabled due to polio since 1954. Living an active life on crutches and leg braces has wreaked havoc on my shoulders, elbows and wrists, which were not engineered to do the work of hips, knees and ankles. My upper body joints are wearing out at an alarming rate. Getting old is bad enough; doing it with a body already seriously compromised really sucks!	11/20/2020 1:18 PM
52	One aspect of this stage of life that is wonderful is having total control over your time. And I've gotten much better at "sorting", both in terms of the things that I want to spend my time doing and the people I want to spend time with.	11/20/2020 12:50 PM
53	My husband passed away 8 years ago. He was only 66 and I thought he would outlive me. He developed brain cancer and it was a trying experience for me and my kids -particularly my youngest who was still in college. It forced me to rethink my life	11/20/2020 12:49 PM
54	I'm an atheist and so have reason not to like the idea of mortality, but I find it less daunting nowadays because I think the world due to climate change, etc. is headed for epic disaster later this century and I'd just as soon not be around to witness that.	11/20/2020 12:44 PM
55	Regrets: the list is short but painful	11/20/2020 12:22 PM
56	Generally in good health and trying to keep it that way. Just got back from visiting with my 96 year old father who is in decline and ready to go. He's not spiritual and is a scientist. It's got me thinking again about what I believe versus what I hope.	11/20/2020 12:13 PM
57	My glass is half-full, but I am a realistic optimist.	11/20/2020 11:52 AM
58	I have been thinking about death more and more and I also feel a distinct lessening of stamina. I have been blessed with a very very good life, though— can't say I have regrets.	11/20/2020 11:39 AM
59	I am lucky to have enjoyed excellent health throughout my life and am still working full-time.	11/20/2020 11:33 AM
60	¡Pura Vida!	11/20/2020 11:29 AM
61	I'm in great health... don't take any meds... don't get sick...only health issues have been broken bones now and then.	11/20/2020 11:25 AM
62	"One day at a time", "one foot in front of the other", and "be the best I can be" keeps me going. So for the most part, all is good.	11/20/2020 11:21 AM
63	Spiritual is a broad term. I'm not big on organized religion, but think you can see a lot of God in nature.	11/20/2020 11:18 AM
64	I still think of myself as just starting out. That's nuts, of course, but it's an irrepressible assumption.	11/20/2020 11:15 AM

13	Trump: malevolence tempered by incompetence	11/30/2020 10:05 AM
14	We need education reform. The sheer volume of stupid conspiracy theories that large numbers of Americans are willing to believe, compounded by unfiltered social media passthroughs, tell me that a large number of my fellow citizens either can not or will not fact check. Our schools need to graduate students who can think clearly. Economic reform and the end of racism must occur. To shut our country off from the potentially brilliant contributions of large groups of people because they've never been able to enter the "power structure" implied by access to wealth is tragic.	11/30/2020 9:49 AM
15	I've created a category for my political orientation. I'm a "radical centrist".	11/30/2020 9:22 AM
16	Participation and service to one's community is the price we pay for the honor of citizenship.	11/30/2020 9:18 AM
17	Eight years as an elected First Selectman, running as a Republican (compassionate, fiscal conservative). Changed affiliation in 2017 to an Independent when the party left me and was no longer recognizable to me	11/30/2020 9:15 AM
18	Unless things change, the US is headed for dissolution.	11/30/2020 9:09 AM
19	In a polarized democracy, the middle ground is the high ground.	11/29/2020 8:10 PM
20	Behavioral economists have begun to discover why voters make decisions contrary to their best interest. More research is needed, but we will need to re-design the procedures of our democracy accordingly. Specifically, we need to guarantee equal access to the media among all candidates, in formats that encourage transmission of fact-based, substantial information, rather than the quotable propaganda that dominates election communication now.	11/27/2020 11:53 AM
21	Social media is using algorithms to create informational feedback loops that are creating large groups that believe in conspiracy theories that threaten democracy. The social media threat is	11/22/2020 9:51 PM enormous and underestimated.

22	Hearing each other out, old friends and casual acquaintances, is the best way to education ourselves and others on the way we must build bridges.	11/22/2020 2:04 PM
23	I agree with leaders who emphasize now we need to listen deeply to those who we disagree with. Trust is built upon understanding not grandstanding.	11/22/2020 8:21 AM
24	The last 4 years has demonstrated that a vibrant economy favorably impacts all groups. Strive for equality of opportunity not artificially trying to regulate equality of results	11/22/2020 7:32 AM
25	I'm on the board of a local community advocacy group, is the extent of my political office holding.	11/21/2020 4:39 PM
26	In my semi-retirement, I am concentrating on my lifelong passion for promoting active participation in community musicmaking, namely, through teaching, coaching, and to the extent possible, promotion of community events. As such, I am gradually absorbing the intricacies of ZOOM and its cousins. My aim, on many levels, is Harmony.	11/21/2020 2:52 PM
27	The current political polarization in the country is scary.	11/21/2020 1:26 PM
28	We try to avoid news sources that are overtly one-sided, and focus on fair reporting of TRUTH, such as NPR and PBS. The rabid politicization of America brought on by Trump is a national disaster.	11/21/2020 10:32 AM
29	Appalled that 70 million+ of my fellow Americans voted for an amoral charlatan for president. Encouraged by what I see in the younger generation.	11/21/2020 9:17 AM
30	Trumps greatest legacy will be the degradation of the truth, a destructive force which will take decades to remedy. History will judge him to be the worst president ever. And dividing a nation on purpose as a strategy? Shame on him!	11/21/2020 8:54 AM
31	Generally, the claim of elected officials being motivated by public service assumes more integrity than is warranted.	11/20/2020 10:46 PM
32	I feel in my gut that I ought to be edging towards the conservative end of the spectrum. I'm over the idea that anyone can do great things if given a fair shake. I think heavy deficit spending is a losing game. Overreach by government rules and regulations irks me sometimes. But to be considered a true conservative these days, you have to believe deeply in a whole lot of crazy shit. I can't bring myself to do that. I'll always go with those who hold facts, truth and reality in high regard, and the right side of the spectrum has abandoned that.	11/20/2020 10:16 PM
33	My primary concern is the increasing evolution of right wing media and it's influence. Critical thinking skills have declined and the lies and conspiracy theories are being accepted uncritically. If the facts don't matter, where goes our democracy?	11/20/2020 5:20 PM
34	Again, this is not merely reflecting the experience of a person whose hourglass is turned over (=71), but it feels like there is more at stake for most people than ever before, particularly with climate degradation and science denial, and Trumpism has been a clear and present danger.	11/20/2020 5:00 PM
35	Improved access to low cost healthcare and education will put us on a better path for the future.	11/20/2020 4:24 PM
36	If Biden becomes president, our country will have serious economic & freedom issues. America will never be the same in a negative way.	11/20/2020 4:12 PM
37	I thought Trump performed well. He was never given a chance. Polarization is outrageous. I think the media has lost its way. Democrats seem hypocritical to interact with.	11/20/2020 3:03 PM
38	I teach in the inner city and they are wonderful kids and their time is coming. America has to be more than White.	11/20/2020 2:25 PM
39	I fear for the future of our country because 71 million people, including—no doubt—members of our class voted for a man who lies, cheats, and steals and who traffics in conspiracy theories and other unethical behaviors that have done possibly irreparable harm to our country. His brutal and unstable behavior has encouraged others with violent and hate-filled attitudes to come out of their hiding places and spew their racism, anti-semitism, homophobia, xenophobia, and bile with impunity.	11/20/2020 2:11 PM
40	Our federal government is a disgrace.	11/20/2020 1:58 PM

41	Going into production on a red. Baseball cap that says. "Mafa. Make America fun again." With slogans like. "Got arthritis or e.d. Vote for me". Or. "Congress is hell so send me to hell". Or even. "If they can call us despicable racists homophobes Can we call them nazi baby killers? (Just asking cuz we don't actually do that)". Or "I believe in science—preborn living humans are not dead aardvarks". Or. "I'm for the blue collar worker and against Wall Street biillionaires. A Democrat in'67, a republican now". Or. "C,s,n, & y made me conservative: 'rules and regulations who needs em. Throw em out the door. Won't you please come to Chicago we can change the world". Mafa Or "if Biden and a.o.c. Are for equality how come their health and soc sec plan is so much better than yours?"	11/20/2020 1:50 PM
42	Amazing how few in the "Trump" conservative camp show any understanding of what true "freedom" consists. Why don't they protest the lost freedom of driving on the left-hand side of the road sometimes?	11/20/2020 1:36 PM
43	Tip O'Neill and Ronald Reagan are both turning in their graves in sheer disgust at our current political polarization.	11/20/2020 1:23 PM
44	The most disturbing aspects of politics today are the degree of influence/control that the hard left exerts over the Democratic Party and the complete loss of objectivity and indifference to the pursuit of truth on the part of most of the national media-and much of academia. And unfortunately, Dartmouth College, and many of the elite colleges in our country have bought in to the notions of "political correctness" and an obsession with the concept of diversity-except the notion of "diversity of ideas." At the same time, Dartmouth and other elite schools have taken a pass on undertaking the hard burden of enforcing the rights of free speech necessary to protect a diversity of ideas. Dartmouth's abdication of the protection of a diversity of political thinking is why I will never contribute another dime to the institution for which I still have enormous affection.	11/20/2020 1:08 PM
45	Future of America is too broad - optimistic for the next 4 years - no; 20 years - yes	11/20/2020 12:55 PM
46	As a deeply divided nation we need to accept compromise if we are to progress, and since our differences are often regional, perhaps federalism holds the answer. E.g., repeal Roe vs. Wade and let the individual states decide. Same thing on gun control. The midlands will have different answers from the coasts. I think we have to learn to live with those differences if we are not to tear ourselves apart.	11/20/2020 12:55 PM
47	I think we'll continue to muddle through, motivated periodically by the need to dodge crises, although I am much more apprehensive about failure to address climate change than ANY other issue you cite	11/20/2020 12:33 PM
48	Believe very strongly in a two party system and the need for both liberals and conservatives, but I am dismayed by those to the right who still support Trump. He is an incredibly divisive and destructive personality. There are many fine conservative alternatives to Trump.	11/20/2020 12:19 PM
49	Disturbed by the Trump Cult among republican leaders, the support for the pure dishonesty by Trump, and the level of intimidation by Trump of US Citizens.	11/20/2020 11:35 AM
50	This election was a mess. Voting reform has to be a high priority. Voters identification is obviously critical to fair elections. We should have a national holiday on election day. Tighten up absentee voting and eliminate mail in voting.	11/20/2020 11:35 AM
51	If this nation never faces its original sin, it will never be what it claims to be, and will never be truly great.	11/20/2020 11:25 AM
52	You need to refine the question. I have run for and served in a number of offices that were political related to my profession or charity interests. Never public office.	11/20/2020 11:22 AM
53	We're in a selfish-and-proud-of-it phase. If we remain in this phase we'll cease to be a country and will become merely a place.	11/20/2020 11:20 AM

1	Did more volunteer work when I was younger. Boy Scout leader for my son, athletic coach for son and daughter,	11/30/2020 5:32 PM
2	Was a community activist for 20 years in the area of homelessness and affordable housing. Still dabbling.	11/30/2020 3:23 PM
3	Becoming involved at the Hop set me on a path that enriched my life and (I think) the communities I have been blessed to serve.	11/30/2020 12:38 PM
4	My volunteer work is (largely) within the organization within which I worked in my career - hoping to serve the larger society through the work that organization does.	11/30/2020 12:26 PM
5	It has been a waterpark ride with side chutes. Starting in Dentistry morphing to anesthesia. Then, after frying out, off to Mexico to build condos and develop land in AZ. Now back in SC where the transplants from OH and MI drive me crazy with their know it all attitudes but selling lake property here for a bit more.	11/30/2020 10:31 AM
6	My career in oil and gas exploration, and later in information provisioning, has been rewarding beyond measure. Knowing what we know now about climate change, it's imperative that the energy industry pivot to finding ways to translate the skills needed for finding and producing economic amounts of oil and gas towards a more balanced future where capture of CO2 is as important as finding the energy sources that world security relies upon.	11/30/2020 9:54 AM
7	There are some gaps...like not starting my business career in a large corporation, formally learning certain management disciplines.	11/30/2020 9:27 AM
8	I have had several careers ranging from government service to private development to nonprofit community development to university lecturer to private consulting and enjoyed every one of them.	11/30/2020 9:22 AM
9	I pursued a second separate professional career in zoology (turtles and tortoises) and conservation and started a nonprofit research and publishing organization, a field in which I continue to work professionally	11/30/2020 9:14 AM
10	I loved working so retiring was difficult. I eased into it and now am very pleased with the volunteer projects I've undertaken. Also enjoying free time, sports, travel, etc. that I couldn't do as much when working. I'm probably more physically fit and have more friends than when working.	11/29/2020 6:23 PM
11	I prioritized intellectual stimulation and satisfaction over economic security, and am glad I did. I have scaled back my professional activities, but people continue to ask me to do work that is too much fun to pass on (and some that I do pass on to the next generation).	11/27/2020 11:58 AM
12	Working self employed in medicine gave me time for kids and volunteering	11/22/2020 7:02 PM
13	Retirement offered the opportunity to work for same life goals in radically different way. Since leaving the public service/advocacy arena i have entered a new career as an actor on stage and screen. I've left behind trying to save the world and now focus on saving myself and one other person at a time. I've left behind administrative, organizational and leadership work. I now say yes to work that I'm passionate about and that brings me joy.	11/22/2020 8:36 AM
14	My pair of early life goals—raising a family while pursuing professional activities in the arts—were tantamount to a vow of poverty but the resultant experiences helped me develop a tough skin and I intend to carry on as long as there's still a way I can contribute to the community I'm in.	11/21/2020 3:01 PM
15	I believe I'm transitioning from par-time worker to volunteer.	11/21/2020 1:31 PM
16	Having chosen to focus on the wood products industry, I was extremely fortunate to wind up as an executive in charge of over 3.8 million acres of northern USA timberland and mills. Likely too much time traveling, but I could come home to Montana's grandeur.	11/21/2020 10:39 AM
17	Being an English major at Dartmouth laid a great foundation for my work as a journalist and university, and inspired a lifelong love of reading and writing.	11/21/2020 9:24 AM
18	I was a self-employed cabinetmaker doing high-end residential work. This tangible, hands-on work was rewarding to say the least. As a Dartmouth graduate, I had the ability to develop strong relationships with my clients and my associates thought my professional career. My	11/21/2020 9:02 AM

	Dartmouth experience allowed me to wear the many hats necessary to run a successful business.
19	I was fortunate to always have purpose or mission beyond the self-aggrandizement of a paycheck.	11/20/2020 10:53 PM
20	I always approached work with a balanced mind. It took me seven banks to find one with a balanced shareholder/employee/customer mindset. With this, the customers and profits came easily.	11/20/2020 5:51 PM
21	Thirty four years as an educator were enormously satisfying, I kept a link to my school through sports. I have no regrets, it's been great.	11/20/2020 5:24 PM
22	Still feel that Liberal Arts prepared me well -- broad-mindedness, critical thinking, written/oral expression, appreciation for the world's wisdom traditions, tolerance of ambiguity, etc. However, we were less prepared to adapt to the pace of change on work/career. I had to shift gears 2-3 times in major ways, which took its toll.	11/20/2020 5:07 PM
23	I work part-time occasionally as therapist & regular volunteer in various capacities.	11/20/2020 4:18 PM
24	I retired earlier than expected after a satisfying 42+ year career, most of which (39 years) was spent at one nonprofit. I chose to do so because the organization I led was in a very strong and productive position and also because I had trained and mentored a successor executive director who I knew would be the right leader for the next phase of its maturation. I also left because I am a lifelong environmentalist and was eager to volunteer as a climate crisis educator, which I'm now doing. I also wanted to do more political organizing, another important focus of my post-retirement years.	11/20/2020 2:17 PM
25	Retired, but still writing/maintaining textbooks and running a small software firm	11/20/2020 1:57 PM
26	I ended up with almost equal time in two careers-law and education. I found both stimulating and satisfying, albeit in very different ways. I can't imagine having spent the last 50 years on only one career track.	11/20/2020 1:12 PM
27	I was a Foreign Service Officer at the apogee of the American Century and was a witness to some history. It was a "great ride" and I was proud to serve and to contribute "my bit." I'm not sure I would wish to undertake that career now given current circumstances when American seems in retreat and decline. Hopefully this historically resilient country can rebound and make one proud again.	11/20/2020 1:07 PM
28	This assumes only 1 career. I am on my 3rd	11/20/2020 12:59 PM
29	I have been able to put my legal background to good use for the non-profits I am involved in as a board member. I really enjoy my hands on volunteer opportunities and it has grown my friend network as well to include younger folks who add a different dimension to my life	11/20/2020 12:57 PM
30	I very much doubt that I would be where I am professionally today (in a very good place) if it were not for attending Dartmouth.	11/20/2020 12:36 PM
31	I had the great privilege of looking forward to going to work every day for 35 years.	11/20/2020 12:28 PM
32	My volunteer efforts have been severely curtailed by COVID. Hope to get back to those again in 2021	11/20/2020 12:21 PM
33	Have done volunteer work all the way. It's always needed.	11/20/2020 12:05 PM
34	Did not intend to be on a highly volatile career/business path but circumstances drove me there!	11/20/2020 11:40 AM
35	I had two careers. One in the military for 20 years, then as a mental health therapist for 26.	11/20/2020 11:39 AM
36	Fortunate career experiences and fantastic family and friends experiences.	11/20/2020 11:38 AM
37	Enjoyed some parts and not others. Will leave more material assets to heirs than what I started with. Always wanted a ranch and haven't gotten there.	11/20/2020 11:26 AM
38	I made it up. Makes more sense to me than to other people.	11/20/2020 11:25 AM

#	RESPONSES	DATE
1	Due to pandemic, I have relocated from NYC to East Hampton, but I still have an apartment in the City. I have a solid relationship with my son, but am estranged from my daughter.	11/30/2020 3:56 PM
2	In Toronto Canada, majority of family in the USA.	11/30/2020 3:26 PM
3	We are lucky our children don't need help but that we have the means to contribute to their financial security	11/30/2020 2:31 PM
4	It's been a great life, and I expect it to continue to be.	11/30/2020 12:39 PM
5	I live in a rural setting that is within what is considered a resort area; however, I do not live what is considered a resort lifestyle - I listed resort, though where I live is essentially "rural" with handy access to hiking, skiing, lakes, and river.	11/30/2020 12:31 PM
6	I appreciate my spouse and my relationship more during the pandemic with the limits it imposes on socializing with others outside the home.	11/30/2020 12:15 PM
7	I hope to again have a long-term committed relationship.	11/30/2020 11:32 AM
8	I literally have NO family, but having lived as an only child of an only child, this is not an issue. I have always found ways to amuse myself and pass the time. I hear about people separated from their families and the pain that they experience. I have to think really hard to try to experience those emotions as having a group of people around me constantly would drive me nuts. Glad Oscar (my pit bull) never argues with me. Some may say I'm damaged goods but I'm a happy camper in my own little world.	11/30/2020 10:38 AM
9	Both of our kids have gone on to successful careers and have healthy, happy kids of their own. They have done us proud in every aspect of their lives.	11/30/2020 9:26 AM
10	One of 3 daughters born with Williams Syndrome (a gene deletion syndrome) has changed how my wife and I and daughters live--not much ability to travel as we'd like, and great responsibilities setting up a group home and special needs trust fund.	11/30/2020 9:21 AM
11	My family life, lifestyle and career were all compromised and continue to be so by my husband's illnesses that began twenty-nine years ago. The women's section of the survey doesn't include the impact of nuclear and extended family caregiving on quality of life, but I suspect it has impacted others also.	11/29/2020 6:20 PM
12	My life has been centered on faith, family and friends, and I've been richly blessed.	11/22/2020 7:12 PM
13	I had hoped to become a college professor, but never finished the PhD. due to language challenges. My daughter is living my dream now at Duke, tenured in Classics Dept. Her husband is an ER & ICU doctor, so we worry about him constantly in the Covid era.	11/22/2020 2:11 PM
14	I have close connections with my 40+ siblings, nieces & nephews. My difficult life resulted in less successful outcomes with my children. I'm making amends and grateful for the chance to change that.	11/22/2020 8:47 AM
15	Married for 51 years to my high school honey. We're both from humble families and feel blessed to still be together and to have means that we could only dream about when young (even though this doesn't put us in the major donor classes)	11/22/2020 7:40 AM
16	I don't expect always to be sailing this close to the wind financially but I've invested my meager nest egg in helping a small cultural enterprise survive the deprecations of COVID-19 lockdowns, partnering with a like-minded individual who has a lot to give. Ultimately, the lockdowns will only have extended our circle of influence—possibly by a great deal. But right now we're in the thick of the struggle.	11/21/2020 3:09 PM
17	Time with family and friends is the heart of my life.	11/21/2020 1:40 PM
18	After many years in the Seattle area, we were able to continue my career moving to Whitefish, MT. Our children both migrated to other Montana locations, which has been highly satisfying. Don't think Sue and I could ever return to Big City living...	11/21/2020 10:43 AM
19	Just keep moving.	11/21/2020 9:05 AM
20	Slow lifestyle is better than fast paced. Simple is better than complex. Sequential-tasking is sane & satisfying ... multi-tasking is just a euphemism for constant interruption.	11/20/2020 11:01 PM

21	Was married 15 years and had three children (29, 25, 19) who have all done very worthwhile things. Got divorced - single for 13 years - now in a very rewarding relationship that started at 68 and has led to much happiness. The moral: never give up on love.	11/20/2020 10:23 PM
22	I like to stay close to home (6 hour drive each way), my wife likes to travel abroad. Wife spends a lot, I don't. I maintain the house, she complains. But she is the spice in my life... Love the grandkids the most.	11/20/2020 5:57 PM
23	No regrets taking a teaching job with retirement security but no financial bonanzas, we have lived a wonderful, comfortable life, if somewhat frugal.	11/20/2020 5:31 PM
24	I live in a small city of around 100,000 people. That didn't seem to be one of the options.	11/20/2020 4:00 PM
25	The key to happiness is low expectations.	11/20/2020 3:04 PM
26	We left our Massachusetts home of 40 years in July to temporarily relocate to our vacation home near Hanover. We love it so much that I'm not sure we'll ever return to full time city life even after the pandemic is over and the doors are flung open. I fell in love with the Upper Valley almost 50 years ago and the intervening years have only served to deepen that connection.	11/20/2020 2:20 PM
27	With six kids some are very close some sadly less so. Money wise. We get enough for comfort but aren't traveling first class	11/20/2020 2:06 PM
28	It's too bad that Covid-19 influences so many of my responses. Had I answered this questionnaire a year ago, my responses would have been more positive.	11/20/2020 2:03 PM
29	We think we live modestly, but we realize we are very spoiled.	11/20/2020 1:39 PM
30	Very lucky to still be married to the wonderful woman I met the summer before senior year, and married two months after graduation.	11/20/2020 1:26 PM
31	I have no children but plenty of nieces/nephews/cousins with whom I remain in contact. All live far away, so in daily life I depend on my partner of 35 years and on good friends nearby for happiness. I live comfortably but well beneath my means, because I was raised not to be extravagant. And that means I'll have more to bequeath to charity when I die (and charities will get most of my Estate), esp. since I have no children as heirs.	11/20/2020 1:19 PM
32	Got the marriage thing right the second time around and as a result, retirement and life are very satisfying. Being able to do what you want, when you want to do it, is still a treat.	11/20/2020 1:18 PM
33	I miss travelling and look forward to a post-pandemic world in which my wife and I can continue to visit places on our bucket list.	11/20/2020 12:38 PM
34	Family is a big focus of our travel (in normal times). But now that my wife has retired we are trying to get some trips in just for us. That happened in 2019, but not this year.	11/20/2020 12:24 PM
35	Fiscally responsible and open to opportunities. Include the family as much as possible.	11/20/2020 12:10 PM
36	Fantastic family relationships, great friends and in love with my lifestyle.	11/20/2020 11:43 AM
37	Hard work, frugal life style and luck - and very grateful for the outcome	11/20/2020 11:43 AM
38	Four kids.	11/20/2020 11:40 AM
39	I think you should have included "Widowed" as another option for "Marital Status". I think there are many of us who find ourselves "Single" because we have lost our loved one.	11/20/2020 11:35 AM
